PROJECT SUMMARY:

This project aims to concentrate on requalification of people who want to become teachers in Bulgarian language and literature. The focus is not accidental - in recent years there is a severe shortage of teachers, and the profession is becoming more promising. The current project seeks to answer these needs and increased interest.

The requalification will have two sides: requalification of teachers in our country, and also requalification of people who are citizens of foreign countries, but want to find their profession in this field and become Bulgarian language and literature teachers in lots of Bulgarian (mostly weekend) schools abroad.

Along with its educational side, the project also stakes on informational and reference nature of intellectual products and contains an element of a communication strategy "live" that we intend to apply during transnational meetings in partner countries. We are going to popularize the results of our work through interdisciplinary events in an entertaining and informal way and also the image of Bulgaria as a shared object of interest and realization.

With its accent on the possibility of flexible change of profession, and on the connection of qualification to new technologies and latest achievements of didactics and foreign language teaching, the project is shaping up as a model for linking traditional education in Bulgarian language and literature with innovations and as an undertaking opening the humanitarian field to the future.

Last but not least, the great virtue of the project is the fact that it gives opportunities to disadvantaged people - they will be able to take advantage of the distant forms of education and the possibilities for adaptation of resources to the Braille system.
